

LINCOLN VILLAGE VOICE

PUBLISHED BY URBAN ANTHROPOLOGY INC. IN LINCOLN VILLAGE, A HEALTHY NEIGHBORHOODS ORGANIZATION; DEC. 2009

Lincoln Village's most interesting people

His is a passion for authenticity

Native plants. Original architecture. Antiques. History of Lincoln Village. These are a few of the passions of Dan Jankowski of 2231 S. 10th Street.

Let's begin with the point that he lives in the house that his great grandfather built in the 1880s. His family arrived with the original wave of Poles to the area that is today Lincoln Village. His mother still lives in the upper flat of this home. Across from Kosciuszko Park, the home was on a block once considered a "gold coast" of the south side during the years of Polish domination. Dan is working slowly to restore the home to its original design, and is also furnishing the rooms with antiques.

But Dan's absolute passion is with horticulture. His day job is in interior landscaping, and his free time is spent in native landscaping.

Jankowski

Dan Jankowski and his home on 10th Street

Dan has created a nature preserve in his backyard. Since the 1970s he's added native plants and wild flowers to this large yard. He also owns a property nearby on Logan and Tripoli with a double lot. For the past 15 years he's added 600 native species to the lot.

While Dan is frustrated with crime in Lincoln Village, he loves the neighborhood. He sees a new trend lately through the efforts of the Basilica and Urban Anthropology.

Did you know that...? A soda factory once existed in LV

This house on 2221 S. 16th St. was built in the 1850's for German immigrants Carl and Dorothea Kunckell. They manufactured soda water on a log cabin on the property. John Graf of "Grandpa Graf" fame worked for Kunckell before going into the soda water business for himself. Note the magnificent tower on the home.
